INDEX

S. No.	Title
1	Overcoming the myth surrounding prospects of Pharm. D: Through Experiential Training and Learning during Clinical Visits
2	Employment of female faculty members – A step towards women empowerment

Best Practice- I

1. Title of the Practice

Overcoming the myth surrounding prospects of Pharm. D: Through Experiential Training and Learning during Clinical Visits

2. Objectives

- To provide Drug and Poison Information Services
- To perform Pharmacovigilance Activities
- To provide Patient Counselling Services
- To participate in Ward Rounds
- To perform Medication History Interview
- To look into Prevention, Assessment and Management of Drug Interactions

3. Context

Pharm. D students are frequently seen as a burden by preceptors and hospital management rather than as valuable members of the healthcare team. Pharmacy colleges must develop their Pharm.D. graduates to handle drug therapy with confidence and accountability. Pharm.D. students should be assigned tasks and duties that are patient-centred. However, patient-centred care necessitates a unique set of abilities and education (e.g., clinical practise skills, critical thinking skills, decision-making skills). When Pharm. D course in our college started in 2014, there were lot of apprehension in students mind regarding the future and scope of the course because by 2014 already the first batch of Pharm. D graduates across India has passed out with limited career opportunities.

4. The Practice

According to its own mission and vision, the Aditya College of Pharmacy constantly tries to operate differently, creatively, and distinctively from other pharmaceutical colleges. Looking at the scenario of Pharm. D graduates in the year 2014, we at Aditya College of Pharmacy started to train our Pharm. D students in such a way that the students get more practical and clinical knowledge along with theoretical learning by collaborating with GSL Medical College and General Hospital, Rajahmundry. We started to expose our students to clinical learning in hospitals from second year to sixth year onwards where the students were subjected to learn safe, effective and economic drug therapy in patient treatment. Students were subjected to regular ward rounds in presence of doctors where they got opportunities to learn about different clinical aspects of patients such as symptoms, diagnosis, treatment, lifestyle modifications, etc. Students carried out project work in the fifth year and internship in sixth year of the Pharm. D curriculum under the able guidance of Head of Departments of general medicine, general surgery, paediatrics, gynaecology, respiratory medicine and orthopaedics and it's when the students learnt more about various aspects in patient treatment while working for outpatient and inpatient departments. Students also got accustomed to various diagnostic means in patient treatment such as learning about ECG, X-Ray, ultrasound, MRI, CT scan, endoscopy, etc. College management also provided IBM Micromedex Solutions to the students for evidence based clinical resources to support informed diagnosis and treatment decisions. Students were trained in giving case presentation of patients in front of doctors and preceptors. Apart from this student were provided several training modules on personality development and communication skills. We at Aditya College of Pharmacy also inculcated the importance of research and development among our students so that they do research works in clinical field and then publish the same in various pharmacy scientific journals. With all the above rigorous experiential training and learning for five years our students started to feel confident about themselves and their profession and they were ready to face job interviews with positive intent. As expected, the first batch (2014-2020) and second batch (2015-2020) passed out with flying colours and maximum of them got placed in leading clinical research organisations or hospitals of India with good annual package.

Continuing with the trend more students got job placement from 2014-2020, 2015-2021 batch and from 2016-2022 batch which passed out in October, 2022, 16 students among 24 students have already secured jobs till date with many more success stories to come.

Our Top Recruiters:

6. Problems encountered and resource required

Initially there was lack of awareness among doctors regarding Pharm. D course. Hospital authorities, management and doctors were not recognising Pharm. D students as valuable members to the healthcare system and because of this the preceptors and doctors were hesitating to impart adequate training to them but due to our constant, regular, disciplined and well-structured visit to hospital and with the interest shown by our students and zeal to learn about different aspects of patient treatment our students were able to establish themselves as a clinical pharmacists in front of the hospital authorities and moreover by getting themselves employed in hospitals and clinical research organisations they also removed the myth surrounding the prospects and future of Pharm. D course.

Best Practice- II

1. Title of the Practice

Employment of female faculty members – A step towards women empowerment

2. Objectives

- Enhancing gender equality
- Promoting women empowerment
- To make women self-dependent
- To make girl students feel more safe and secure in presence of female faculty
- To make girl students more expressive in company of female faculty
- To make female faculty member of “Internal Complaint Committee” and “Anti-Ragging Committee”.

3. Context

In a progressive society women need to be provided equal opportunities at work. In the context of women empowerment, for faculty vacancies, it's critical that colleges seek out more diverse applicants. Nowadays, women are performing better academically than males. Women are surpassing men in practically every measure of academic accomplishment. Therefore, a better female student can also be a better teacher. Additionally, female students believe that their female teachers are more likely to provide them an equal opportunity to engage and are more likely to support creative expression. When female faculty members are present, female students are more outspoken and feel more secure. Female professors can educate female students on self-defence, female health issues, and other topics. We at Aditya College of Pharmacy have taken an initiative towards women empowerment by recruiting more female faculties in our campus.

4. The Practice

Every year, we at Aditya College of Pharmacy are recording higher number of female applicants to our undergraduate and post-graduate courses in pharmacy. To have an effective faculty gender balance, our college recruit's female faculties along with male faculties during recruitment drive conducted each year. College focuses to recruit and retain more female faculties because of higher number of female students admitted each year in our campus. This activity also promotes women empowerment. Women faculties play huge role in holistic development of students as they can connect emotionally to both female and male students. These faculties are also made members of “Internal Complaint Committee” and “Anti-Ragging Committee” where they take care of issues like sexual harassment against female students and staffs and ragging issues against girl students. Female faculties also play a pivotal role in counselling for girl students as these students can be more expressive and outspoken about their issues to them.

5. Evidence of Success

Average percentage of female faculties in last seven years is 64.14 %. The details of last seven years are as follows:

Overall Average Percentage of Female faculties from 2016-2017 to 2022-2023

6. Problems encountered and resource required

Married female faculties encountered more problems than unmarried female faculties due to their family issues and because of this some of them are not able to perform well professionally. College tries to take care of such faculties in a sensitive manner. College generally does not encountered problems with unmarried female faculties but problems arise when such faculties get married and resign from the job. In such a situation college immediately schedules recruitment for new faculty to fill the void.
