Report on the student attributes facilitated by the Institution

To nurture overall growth and development of a student, we should maintain the between curricular, co-curricular and extracurricular activities.

Co-curricular activities: These skills are useful to enhance and exhibit the Non-academic skills and abilities among students.

Extra-Curricular activities: These activities create an interesting and innovative ambiance to the students to collaborate with their peer group. They interact with others and help each other and fulfill their tasks. They learn proper communication skills and soft skills by these activities.

We have different committees with different tasks and aims. These all committees associated with each other and the student council plans various programs and events which are related to the sources, interests of the students. It plays a vital role in sustainable development of the campus.
